

Praises for Create Space for Peace

"Gene Stoltzfus was one of God's "unexpected outcomes" so we are very fortunate to have this collection. Gene always told us, his friends, that we should "expect to be surprised" and I expect he would be surprised that his life is receiving attention today. But without lives like his we are without hope. Gene's life and this collection are gifts that help us recognize the surprising reality of peace in a world of captivated by cynicism and despair."

-Stanley Hauerwas, Gilbert T. Rowe Professor of Theological Ethics at the Divinity School of Duke University.

"Gene Stoltzfus used imagination and courage to help build communities of nonviolence. He wore his CPT hat like a hardhat, spending many months "on site," constructing, advising, and generally enjoying the entire project of peace team development. He longed for an end to war. In a remarkable array of projects at home and abroad, he steadily encouraged his companions to accompany those who bear the worst brunt of injustice and to simultaneously pursue nonviolent resistance. Readers of this book will be guided by Gene's careful reflection about issues related to peace and war. They'll also discover bridges to other communities where he labored, graciously, for peace."

-Kathy Kelly, Co-coordinator, Voices for Creative Nonviolence.

"Gene was such a strong presence in everything he did. He lived his life as a truly Human One. Our heartfelt thanks for his life."

-June and Walter Wink, Professor Emeritus, Auburn Theological Seminary,

"Drones" zijn de onbemande vliegtuigjes voor verkenningen én voor bombardementen, die gebruikt worden in Pakistan en Afghanistan. Ze worden bestuurd vanuit Creech Airforce Base in de VS. Gene maakte zich grote zorgen over deze vorm van oorlogvoering.
